Prologue

To every person whom He puts on earth, God assigns a special role to fill. To every high school student God has assigned such a role and He has given him the talents and abilities to fill that particular role better than anyone else. But, what is that role?

It is evident, we think, to all that in the lives of many high school students there exists much bewilderment, confusion, and above all, aimlessness. Because of this, we of the Senior Class have chosen as our theme, Careers For Youth, in the hope that what is said here, though of necessity very brief, may encourage some students to realize that the time to overcome this aimlessness, the time to choose and plan is NOW. If this is done under competent guidance, students may confidently hope to live a life that is full, abundant, purposeful, and happy.

Two points must be considered: a study of oneself, and a study of the different careers in life.

In the study of oneself the first requirement is honesty. Some people see only their good points and their abilities; others see only their bad points and lack of ability. Such types of judgments are wrong. True, we must be able to recognize our faults and our inabilities . . . but we must not stop there! We must also evaluate our assets: our aptitudes and talents. Here the advice of a prudent counselor is of great value. This appraisal must be made before the second point can be considered—that of the various careers in life open to young people with vision and ambition.

When a high school student has made this necessary study of self with a competent guide, he will find that where hitherto the list of possible careers seemed limitless, now for him it has become much more limited. Financial background, physical health, intellectual ability, interests, and aptitudes all combine to point out one or several careers for which he is best suited. At the same time these considerations eliminate many careers for which he is not suited.

The five categories of careers with their subdivisions which we have chosen for our dividing pages are but one possible division. Our purpose has not been to exhaust the possibilities that exist for the youth of Cheverus; rather it has been to make the students of Cheverus aware of the necessity of planning EARLY, and to make them aware of some of the careers in which we feel God has chosen some of them to fill that special role.

The unbeatable combination is to pray, think, listen to competent advice, and then choose. Then there will be no room for aimlessness; rather there will be room only for preparation for being a leader in all that is good in life. There will be purpose in one's life and fulfillment of that special role, and with God's grace success and happiness.

PROFESSIONAL OCCUPATIONS

Each profession has its societies, some of which attempt to set up standards for membership in the profession. Moreover, many professions are licensed—physicians, dentists, and pharmacists, for example—and in these cases the licensing board determines the qualifications that a professional person in the field should have. Very often, however, there is no clear-cut line drawn between professional and other types of workers.

Some fields are overcrowded, others not so. For example, serious shortages exist in the chemical, medical, and teaching professions. Even if a young man is interested in an overcrowded profession, he should remember that there is always room for the well-qualified member in any profession.

Although the reward and satisfaction of a successful professional career is great, those who wish to embark on one will not find it easy. They must complete long periods of training and grinding study in competition with the brightest students. They must take and pass difficult examinations both in the college and professional schools and before State licensing boards. In most cases colleges will not even accept them for professional training unless their high school grades are well above average; and often employers will give preference to graduates whose grades in their professional schools were in the highest half or quarter of the class.

The professions offer glamour and prestige, but also hard grinding work. Yet there is found there great reward and satisfaction.

Rector of Boston College High School

Dedication

Very Rev. Francis J. Gilday, S. J.

No man is more deserving of the fond remembrance of the present generation of Cheverus students and that of recent graduates than Father Gilday. Although he filled the position of Principal for a scant three years, the fruits of his indomitable zeal and tireless labor will be reaped by Cheverus men for many years to come.

With patient understanding he assured the timid freshman that the monstrous obstacle, a Jesuit high school education, was well worth the pains it might cost. Father's athletic ability attracted wonderment, for few men could bend as far over backward as he to help a student. Hours on end were spent with uncertain seniors, reassuring them and reenforcing them for their first onslaught into the big world.

Here was a man devoted to his mission; and he wore his devotion on his face. His amicable smile enabled a timid student or a renowned dignitary to feel at home in his company. The office lights burning late at night told of the long work day Father Gilday constantly yet gladly engaged in for the benefit of Cheverus.

Nothing in his stay in Portland was more becoming to his virtue than his humble departure; and, due to the suddenness of it, Cheverus seemed miserably empty. But his mission here was completed. This dedicated man of God had a greater work to do.

It is with sincere admiration and deep gratitude that we wish Father complete success and intense happiness as Rector of Boston College High School.

DIOCESE OF PORTLAND
THE BISHOP'S OFFICE

PORTLAND 6, MAINE

March 14, 1957

Gentlemen of Cheverus High School:

"Careers for Youth", the theme of The Clarion this year, is most appropriate. In asking me to write you this letter, your Moderator, Father Buchan, stated that this theme is "to attempt to get the students thinking and planning early, so as to combat the aimlessness that is so prevalent among high school students these days." Please note the word "aimlessness" in that last sentence. I remember that a few years ago at Cheverus I told the students that too many of the high school students I remarked loitering about favorite haunts in the city reminded me of freight box-cars: they appeared to be absolutely aimless. A box-car has neither head nor tail, no evidence of direction; it goes where it is hauled, shoved or shunted. It is devoid of all appearance of character. It is not attractive, merely utilitarian. So, a life that could have been intellectually aimed, but for want of thought and planning becomes aimless, animates a body that is fit only for use as a utilitarian labor device. Your education should prepare you for something better.

In planning your future let me, as your spiritual leader, plead with you for a few moments to give serious thoughts to the work of the priesthood in this diocese. We need priests. This is the cry of Bishops everywhere and we are no exception here in Maine. We need priests to do the work of Jesus Christ Whom you have come to know as the Son of God and your Saviour, to preach His gospel, to administer His sacraments, to perpetuate Christian civilization, to save souls, including your own precious gift of immortality.

"Come, follow Me:" this is the invitation of our gentle Christ to those willing to listen to Him as did His first apostles and ready to make the sacrifices necessary that His divine plan for mankind be realized. I beg you not to turn a deaf ear to this invitation. Reflect, pray, seek advice and direction from your wise teachers among the Jesuit Fathers. The need is great and I would be happy to ordain more Cheverus men to the holy priesthood.

That the grace of a divine vocation may be granted to many of you, and that serving God may be a career for those who listen and heed the call is my earnest prayer.

With a prayer that God may bless you all and by His Providence direct you in a noble aim in life, I remain,

Yours sincerely in Christ,

+ David J. Feeney

SEMIPROFESSIONAL OCCUPATIONS

Although the line between professional and semiprofessional occupations has never been sharply drawn, the word, "semiprofessional," generally is intended to imply that the occupation, although similar to professions in that it demands knowledge, training, and judgment, requires a shorter or more informal period of training. The semiprofessional fields are much more within the grasp of the average high school student than the professional. Most of them pay well, although usually they neither pay as well as the professions, nor are they as satisfying.

The increasing need for top-notch scientists has expanded the demand for good semiprofessional workers such as laboratory technicians and draftsmen. These are trained to do the less difficult and routine work formerly done by the scientists themselves. Thus, the professional engineer is given basic training in higher mathematics and scientific principles, which he applies to each new problem; whereas the semiprofessional draftsman is required merely to have a practical knowledge of scientific methods and practices, so that he can translate the engineer's sketches into blueprints.

This need for draftsmen, laboratory assistants, and engineering aids makes these among the most attractive of the semiprofessional occupations. Some companies train good prospects for these technical positions, but most demand a certain amount of knowledge of the field. This knowledge can be gained in the various technical and business schools specializing in these fields.

Some men have advanced to professional occupations because of personal ability and study. Whereas many others have enjoyed extremely successful careers in the semiprofessional field.

Class President

ROBERT D. CURLEY

39 Pillsbury Street — South Portland

"Bob"

We present to you, popular Bob . . . an excellent choice for this exalted office. Always a gentleman, Bob has been a great credit as the leader of the South Portland delegation to Cheverus. His continued popularity has been shown in his selection as a class officer each year. As football captain, Bob had the great honor of leading the team of which we are so justly proud. Backing up the line, he threw himself into his work just as he has given his all to everything he has attempted. The expression, "Big things come in small packages," was never more true than about our Class President. Bob's humorous remarks and friendly sincerity will carry him rapidly along the road to success.

CLERICAL AND SALES OCCUPATIONS

It seems that the advent of labor-saving machines, from the typewriter to the latest tabulating machine, has actually served to increase the over-all number of clerical workers. The requirements for this type of employment range all the way from several years of college for accounting (which is sometimes called a profession), to a minimum of training for office boys and messengers. It is relatively easy for the person interested in bettering his status to go up the ladder in the clerical field by acquiring knowledge of various types of work as he advances.

To be successful in sales work one must acquire the ability to meet and deal with people with ease, while convincing them of the merits of his own views. Experience and ability give the ambitious man an opportunity to move into administrative posts, such as sales manager, and then right up the ladder. Many attend evening schools to gain added background as they advance in the field.

While special training is not a must for most sales occupations, the good salesman must know in great detail the merits of the product he will sell. This knowledge is usually gained by experience, although many companies have special introductory courses for new salesmen to enable them to profit by the experience of long-time salesmen.

The present high level of economy continues to open up new sales positions. To the young man who is taking full advantage of the English courses offered him so as to improve his ability to write and speak, and who is taking advantage of every opportunity for speaking before a group, this field offers many fine opportunities.

The Class of 1958

Between us and the successful conclusion of our high school career lies only one more year. It seems impossible that so much time, so many classes and so much development could have passed since what seems to have been only yesterday! Through the beginning of the last half of our stay at Cheverus we have had the kind leadership of Fr. Winsper, Mr. Foley and Mr. Lyons. Assisting these home room teachers in various subjects have been Fr. Dooley, Fr. King, Fr. Powers, Mr. Dempsey, Mr. Caskin, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. LaPierre and Mr. Curran.

Keeping up the fine tradition started in our freshman year, and improved upon last year, the Class of 1958 boasts of many members on the rosters of the various extracurricular activities. Bob DeSantis and Garry Litton have led our Sodality contingent. Gene Milliken, Peter Derry and David Madigan entertained all of us in this year's dramatic presentation. Denny Hughes, Bob Duffy and Russell Curran were football standouts. Dick Clancy, Kenny Higgins and Bob DeSantis kept up our interest in Cheverus basketball. Al Schroetel, Denny Bowman and Frank Cameron spurred our tired swimming team, while Garry Litton and John Burnham represented us on the race track.

Having traversed the difficulties and joys of the Cheverus road thus far, we feel confident that the little time left to us at Cheverus will prove just as profitable and even more successful.

The Class of 1959

Matured by two wonderful years of Catholic High School life, we sophomores feel as though we have become an integral part of Cheverus. The silent awe of our freshman days has melted to a deepening respect and love for our high school.

Fr. Bowe, Fr. Buchan and Mr. Lindsay have guided us through the difficult but fascinating adventures of Caesar in Gaul, while Fr. King, Mr. Caskin, Mr. Dempsey, Mr. Lewis, Mr. LaPierre, Mr. Lyons and Mr. Curran have assisted in introducing us to a wide range of subjects from religion and modern language to biology and mathematics.

In school activities Kenneth McKeough and John Ward represented us in the Sodality. Kevin Concannon, Michael Rowell and Dan Heldman excelled in debating. Leo Maliska, John Norton, David Levasseur and Fred James made us proud in football, while Denny McNaboe, Tommy Dunn and Mark LaPointe thrilled us on the basketball court. Among others, Bruce Reddy and Joseph Martelle kept our red-hot band hot, while Tommy Martin and Ray Shevenell helped Cheverus gain many a track honor.

Only weeks ago, it seems, we were lowly freshmen looked down upon by our older brethren. Yet here we are on the threshold of junior year about to make that weighty decision as to our future careers. Tempus fugit to be sure!

Sophomore year has brought with it the development of many of our latent talents. The weekly debates in several of the classes saw timid, hesitant speakers for the first few weeks; but as our confidence grew, so did the heat of persuasive speech! The use of the tape recorder brought out with amazing clarity our mumblings and grumblings; but these soon changed to well rounded syllables. Some of us abandoned the wallflower category when we learned to "trip the light fantastic."

On those fateful days when marks were published, many of us trembled in our boots, but others basked in the glory of the "Honors List." Names frequently seen among this honor group were: Fred Metcalf, Oliver Becker, Floyd Stuart, John Ward, John Johnston to name a few.

In looking forward to the last two years of high school, we feel confident that because of the excellent guidance given us in the past two years we shall be able to overcome whatever obstacles fate may throw in our way.

The Class of 1960

Vacation had scarcely begun before September surprised us. The last breath of summer was still warm upon our necks when we began that strange new life, the life of a Jesuit High School student.

On the first day Father Rector told us that this Jesuit Education strives to develop the whole man—his spiritual life, his intellectual life, his social life and his physical well-being. Slowly we began to witness this quiet development in the silent hours of Religion, Latin, English, History, Mathematics and Science, along with the not-so-quiet hours of intramurals and freshman sports. Under the wise and patient direction of our professors, Fr. Ecker, Fr. Murphy, Fr. Cahill, Fr. Winsper, Fr. King, Fr. Bowe, Fr. Conklin, Mr. Caskin, Mr. Lewis, Mr. McGuire, Mr. Bolduc and Mr. Feehan, we were passing from boyhood to the life of a man.

Yet each of us realized that this passage to manhood at Cheverus was somehow different from the coming of age of other boys at other schools. For we knew that as each of us added some unique trait to the common personality of the whole school, so too the school impressed into us as individuals the foundations of the rich and full manhood which marks the Christian gentleman.

May we, therefore, embrace this new personality which Cheverus has given us that it may grow to the full stature of a Christian living as another Christ.

PUBLIC SERVICE OCCUPATIONS

Under this heading we include all the fields of employment ordinarily listed as domestic service, protective service, personal service, and institutional service.

Domestic service, such as hotel work, etc., as an occupation has been growing more slowly than the labor force as a whole. Whenever other jobs were easy to get, employment in this field declined.

The protective service occupations include mainly policemen, detectives, firemen, guards, the F. B. I., etc. As a rule job seekers have to meet very rigid requirements, especially with regard to age, height, health, strength, agility, and physical endurance. Hiring standards for police jobs are being raised, and competitive examinations are becoming increasingly difficult.

By far the largest service group at present is the armed forces. Here many more opportunities are offered to the long-term enlistee than to one enlisting only for two or three years. For those aspiring to advancement among the higher commissioned officers, good grades in high school, and, in most cases, rigid college training in a military academy must be undergone. In this life one must surrender a certain amount of freedom.

There are excellent opportunities in all types of positions for social workers, but the best opportunities will be offered to those with graduate training. In the communication arts, such as radio, television, newspapers, etc., overcrowding has made competition keen. Success is still possible, but will be had mainly by those with the most ability and ambition.

It seems that the service occupations as a group will grow moderately in the long run, but they are not the great and promising field of the future, as they are sometimes described.

The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Following the dictum of Christ, "Go forth and teach ye all nations", the Sodality this year added a new apostolic project to its activities. A select number of the sodalists began the teaching of catechism and the leading of group discussions on religion in one of the local parishes. Nearly all the sodalists at Cheverus and Cathedral co-operated in reviving the old custom of giving a gala Christmas Party for the poor orphans of St. Elizabeth's home. In the late winter a roller skating party helped fill out the sodality social calendar, and, as the CLARION goes to press, several other social and apostolic projects are on the planning boards for the spring.

But, lest anyone should think that the Sodality has fallen victim to the so-called American heresy of activity, sodalists came closer to Christ their Model, not only through their daily meditations and examinations of conscience but also through the monthly Communion breakfasts which featured a dialogue Mass, recitation of the Rosary and meditation in common.

Room

New faces captured dramatic honors in the presentation of the time-honored comedy, "Room Service," but the backbone of this year's production came from veteran Thespians, Rod Ouellette as Miller, and Carole O'Brien as Miss Gribble—the evening's best actress. Orchids to both. Brilliance from Almond Gushee's debut in the breezy, stormy role of hotel executive which sparked much applause. Sparkle and zest from David Madigan and Peter Derry with their timely quips as Faker and Binion. David Lee, as Davis, supplied the youthful, enthusiastic, playwright from rustic Oswego, who falls in love with the pretty, efficient, Hilda Yvonne Goulet. Three crazy characters plus Christine, Connie White, gave many moments of confusion and comedy—the three, Faker, Binion, and Miller, finally getting loose and playing havoc with the house doctor, John Hachey—the best supporting actor of the evening. New performers, Susan Fairweather, the rich backer's secretary, John Ridge, a Russian actor turned waiter, Louis Thibodeau, the efficient senator, and Joseph Coyne, a broguish bill collector provided the frosting for Fr. John King's first and highly successful production. The stage setting was by Mr. Francis Sullivan, S. J., and a tireless group of great improvisers, called stage hands.

Debating

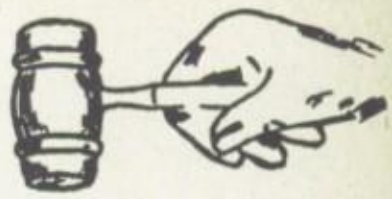
THE SEBASTIAN RASLE DEBATING SOCIETY

Our season started with the annual Discussion Clinic at Bates in Lewiston, on November 30, when our panelists were Robert Frates, Francis Thomas, Fred Conley and Robert DeSantis. In the following month, we were represented at the Bowdoin College 27th Annual Interscholastic Debate Tournament by Garfield Litton, Eugene Milliken, Paul Richard and Albert Sibson.

After the Christmas holidays, we learned the final wording of the National High School Debate Proposition, Resolved: That the federal government should sustain the prices of major agricultural products at not less than 90% of parity. Our first major occasion to use this proposition came in mid-February with another Cheverus trek to Orono, and the South Portland tourney.

In rapid succession followed the Catholic Boys' High School Debate rounds in Fitchburg, Massachusetts and then the Bates League clashes with local schools in late March.

All these events contributed to another successful year for the Rasle Debating Society. Many thanks are due to the debaters named above, who gave generously their time and efforts, to represent Cheverus in the field of argumentation and discussion.



THE BAPST DEBATING SOCIETY

Looking forward to the future supremacy of Cheverus debaters, the Bapst Debating Society accomplishes the same purpose as the Minor Leagues do for baseball. It teaches young hopefuls the fundamentals of forensic procedure. Since the freshman members are still toddling Daniel Websters we confined our activities to intramural debates on the average of once a week. Our motto is "fire into the speech or the speech into the fire" with the result that the sparks flew fast and heavy over such explosive topics as: France and England's unjustified invasion of Egypt and the Suez Canal; the expulsion of Russia from the United Nations; the lowering of the voting age to eighteen; and Federal aid for worthy high school graduates' higher education. The floor discussions have been lively and interesting.

As the year draws to a close, the rough edges are rubbing off. The budding orators now feel at home with an audience and the initial shyness has been shed. The tireless efforts of Father Ecker coupled with the fine response of all the Bapst debaters assure a bright future for the Cheverus Senior Debating Society in the immediate future.

Shakespearean Academy

Shakespeare's perennial appeal to all ages brought interested seniors to form a new Academy at Cheverus. Its purpose was to take a wider view of the productions of England's great playwright. In the weekly sessions, during second semester, Shakespeare was studied as an historian with a message, in Henry V and Richard III; as a comic writer in Twelfth Night; as a tragedian of great power in Othello, and as a man of wealthy fantasy in The Tempest. Thus the Academy took a long stride into the created world of Shakespeare and met the many timeless characters with whom he filled "Ilion, or Rome, or any town you like."

The Radio-Science Club

This year one of the Radio-Science Club's biggest achievements was the acquisition of a truck load of electronic devices, everything from tiny transistors and resistors to large aircraft radio receivers and parts of radar units. Through the fine efforts of Father Conklin, the club now has sufficient equipment to keep it busy for the remainder of the year.

Its members are constantly advancing in the field of radio and electronics, each one working on his pet project. Both the physics lab and the Club benefit greatly from these projects.

The objective of the Club, under the direction of Father Conklin, is to help prepare young men of Cheverus for the unlimited opportunities which the field of science has to offer.

Glee Club

Having accomplished one tremendously successful year, the Glee Club went forward into a second season, believing that anything done well is worth repeating. The members, we are all new recruits this year, agreed that the surprise and delight on the part of our audiences were worth all the time and effort that went into the preparation of the songs. This year the younger members of Cheverus were invited to join the Glee Club to aid us in filling out the first tenor section and to form a nucleus for coming years in the school. Mindful of the success of last year's club in rendering such numbers as "The Students' Marching Song," and "You'll Never Walk Alone," this year's group is filled with enthusiasm and desire to equal and out-sing their predecessors in the Glee Club.

The Band

The period of infancy and trial for the Cheverus High School Band is rapidly coming to a close. After three years of steady and confidant growth, the music makers are coming into their own. No one who heard the Christmas concert performed by the band for the Mothers' Club could fail to realize the growth in quality and size of the band over the last few years since its modest beginnings. This year for the first time elections were held in which Jack Burnham was chosen President and Jim Armstrong was chosen Vice-President. The hopes of the band are running high because of the increased number of grammar school students and entering Freshmen who are showing a new interest in music. Thanks to the constant assistance of our conductor, Mr. Donald Spear, and the effort of the members themselves, we look forward to fine programmes and rousing spirit from the band.

Camera Club

During the past year the Camera Club made an all-out effort to fully equip the dark-room. With David Lee as President, the Club took numerous pictures of school activities, and purchased equipment with the proceeds from the sale of pictures.

Main interest in the Club came from freshman year. Stanley King, Theodore Borduas, Richard Conley, Herbert MacDonald, George and Bruce Freeman formed the nucleus of the Club. These men were thoroughly trained in the use of all school equipment, and they give promise of being highly efficient and very valuable to the school for the next three years.

Poster Club

With Joseph Coyne '57 as its President, the Poster Club worked on numerous projects designed to bolster student spirit. Due to the artistic efforts of all the members, student interest in the football team was kept at a high pitch despite early season losses. Dennis McNaboe created "Herman," a racoon-coated individual who was quickly accepted as the spirit of Cheverus. "Herman" proved to be an inspiration to the team in its preparation for the Portland game.

Efforts were also made to stimulate interest in the local track meets. Poster Club signs were placed in the "Expo" advertising each meet.

Outstanding contributions throughout the year were submitted by Joseph Coyne, Dennis McNaboe, Bruce Freeman, and William Concannon.

in the Thirty-sixth National Yearbook Critical Service of the National Scholastic Press Association at the University of Minnesota, School of Journalism, this First day of October, 1956.

There is a currently popular song a line of which reads, "You'll never, never know . . . " —and you'll never, never know the work that goes into an edition of THE CLARION until you follow the overworked staff around some year from September to June. There is a certain sense of triumph, though, when one looks back at the headaches and heartaches and then looks at the finished product, the result of love's labor.

In September we were full of enthusiam and could scarcely wait to get to work. The time consumed in writing the sketches of the seniors, and in rushing about the city for advertisements made September, October and November disappear as if by magic. In the meantime Mr. Wendell White was busy posing the seniors and the undergraduate classes for the all important photographs.

THE 1956 CLARION carried on the tradition, begun the year before, of gaining an "All Catholic" rating from the Catholic School Press Association, and a "First Class Honor Rating" from the National Scholastic Press Association. But not content with those, the book was entered in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Critique and Contest, and there it gained a "First Place Certificate." A desire to duplicate these honors has driven us hither and yon in our struggle to publish an edition of THE CLARION of which we can be justly proud.

Bob Frates and John Foster, our Co-Editors-in-Chief, and Jim McDonough, our Managing Editor, have done fine work in co-ordinating the efforts of the other members of the staff.

To all who aided us . . . many, many thanks! To our Moderators, Father Buchan, S. J., and Mister Lewis, S. J., our heartfelt thanks! And . . . to return to our opening sentence . . . perhaps that is why Father Buchan was so frequently humming the tune of "You'll never, never know . . ."

Minstrel Show

As Father Cummiskey had promised, the Minstrel Show of '56 was better than ever. He, Mr. Lindsay, S. J., Mr. O'Shea, S. J., and the other members of the production staff combined to present a lively show from start to finish. Jim Feeney's true-to-life impersonations, the offerings of Steve Haggan, the sweet-voiced Irishman, the swinging, bouncing, lovable antics of Roger Gagne, the appearance of the "Swells" from New York, the Keaneys, and the laugh-filled monologue of farmer "Slim Pickins" Sanville were among the many highlights.

The most spectacular act was executed by the "Cheverus Follies" doing an eerie dance number with phosphorescent costumes. Members of the Glee Club, the Dance Chorus, and the Band performing magnificently formed a marvelous background for the songs and humor of the End Men, for the accordion solos, and for the rich tones of the trumpeteers.

Already plans are under way for another spectacular performance under the direction of the new Moderator, Mr. Lindsay, S. J.

The Key Club

After last year's CLARION went to press, in fact, long after school's closing, something new in Cheverus Key Clubbing happened. Our president, Robert Frates, had the privilege of attending the annual International Key Club Convention, held last year in Dallas, Texas. The sessions went from July 1st until the evening of July 4, and contributed to a very pleasant treat for one Cheverian.

The start of the school year saw our members going by turns, two each week, to the Tuesday luncheon of the Portland Kiwanis Club, at the Lafayette Hotel. This representation was kept up all year.

One of our earliest activities, work on the Fire Prevention poster distribution, brought newspaper and Keynoter attention to the work of our Treasurer, Gary Litton.

On October 31, we held a Hallowe'en dance at the Stevens Avenue Armory, in cooperation with the other local Key Clubs. This was a source of enjoyment for all concerned.

When Westbrook High's Key Club conducted this year's Northern New England Conference of Key Clubs, it was easy for Cheverus Key men to send a good-sized delegation.

Two new features of organization this year were the law requiring weekly dues from all, and the printing of our own club stationery. Our dues, plus the revenue of our chance book campaign, brought needed funds into the till.

As a result of the activities mentioned, and others yet to come, we know that the year will finish most successfully. We thank all concerned, especially our officers, for their generous efforts and loyal cooperation.

Drawing attention to Fire Prevention Week, Key Clubbers distributed stickers. Edward G. Hough, Portland Kiwanis Club, fireman Leigh W. Sellick, Jr., Gary Litton of Cheverus, and Deputy Chief Carl P. Johnson, prepare for the distribution.

RELIGIOUS VOCATIONS

In attempting to determine the special role assigned to him by God, every Cheverus student should seriously ask himself, "Is Christ calling me to the priesthood or religious life?" Obviously not all are called to such a life; but the future priests of Maine must come from the present Catholic youths of Maine, and the training at Cheverus is the best possible background for so sublime a vocation.

At present there are 241,982 Catholics in Maine. Two hundred and thirty-two diocesan priests are caring for their needs, with forty-two seminarians in training. It is quite evident that of the possible careers offered the youth of Maine today, the diocesan priesthood presents one of the finest opportunities for those who have the necessary qualifications.

What are these qualifications? Briefly, the following: a right intention—a young man should be motivated by love for Jesus Christ, and for the salvation of souls, and by the supernatural dignity of the priesthood. Sufficient talent: since most of a priest's work is done among average men, Holy Mother Church looks for her future priests mostly among average men. No candidate is expected to be a genius. Suitable virtue: in general, this would mean humility and obedience, generosity and the spirit of sacrifice, reverence, a kindly disposition and uprightness of character. An easy, accurate way to measure your state of virtue is to examine the manner in which you spend your holidays and leisure time. Loyalty to your duties as a Christian at these times is a good measure of virtue. Prayer and a Confessor's opinion are excellent means of guiding one's decision.

It may be that God is calling some to the vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience of religious life in a religious community. Some may feel drawn to preaching, teaching, writing, the foreign missions, etc. If so, talk with a priest and he will discuss all of this with you.

In the priesthood one is promised much study, hard work, some monotony, joys and sorrows . . . and happiness.

Football

The football season for 1956 witnessed two noteworthy things for Cheverus. The schedule was the roughest in the school's history and the team might well have been the greenest. Everything pointed toward a miserable season. Failures in the first three games proved too much for Cheverus' "Fair-Weather Fans." A startling comeback in the fourth game against Westbrook, however, indicated that the "Irish" were still formidable and might well be giant killers.

Thornton Academy played heads-up ball in the fifth encounter and turned four intercepted passes into scores. Although Cheverus won the battle of statistics, Thornton won the ball game. Once again the future looked bleak. The next game found Cheverus matched with third ranking Portland.

The week of the Portland game proved to be the turning of the tide. Winslow had outlasted Cheverus 26 to 21. Deering had stunned the "Irish" 32 to 20. South Portland torpedoed the "Stags" 43 to 14. Cheverus came back to surprise Westbrook 13 to 6. Thornton seized upon breaks to roll by the team 27 to 14. Now the "Curran Clan" was to be the "victim" of a fired up Portland team.

The story of the game proved to be one of an inspired Cheverus eleven. Jack Conley and Russ Curran provided the power, Bob Napolitano showed clever field generalship, and the line finally realized its potential. Napolitano won the "William Terroni Trophy" as the game's outstanding player. The team won a hard fought game 12 to 7.

over the Bull Dogs. The team had now "arrived" and Lewiston was to meet the same fate as Portland. Perfect aerials from Napolitano to Denny Hughes and a point after to Ken Higgins from Napolitano had the Stags running a front race at the half 13 to nothing. In the second half Lewiston tightened its defenses and ground out appreciable yardage. A late T.D. by Napolitano proved to be decisive, however, and Cheverus won out 19 to 18.

The last game of the year found Cheverus matched with an under-dog Saint Louis eleven. As usual in this series, season's records meant little and the "Eagles" were bent on victory. Jack Conley, Russ Curran, Captain Bob Curley, Bob Napolitano and the whole Cheverus line had the same desire, however, and the result was a Cheverus victory 18 to 13 over one of our best opponents of the year.

Noteworthy performances were turned in by Napolitano throughout the year. Russ Curran, Bob Curley and Jack Conley had their moments of greatness in the Portland, Westbrook, Thornton and Saint Louis games. Denny Hughes stood out against Lewiston. "Tige" Curran, Jack Norton, Lou Della Valle and Marco DiSanto showed fine line play in the second half of the season. Dave Cormier and Bobby DeSantis played excellent football from start to finish. Ken Higgins and Fred James showed enough ability to serve notice to next year's rivals that Cheverus will have a seasoned line to start the "57" campaign with. The prospects for the "57" team are bright and we are confident that under the leadership of Captain-elect Denny Hughes, the "Irish" will rise to the top.

Freshman Football

Lack of size and grammar school experience were the two major obstacles which had to be overcome by this year's freshman team. With only two weeks of training, the freshmen went up against a highly rated South Portland eleven and though somewhat outclassed in the techniques of the game, their spirit and courage were predominant throughout the entire game. South Portland scored two quick touchdowns from which Cheverus never was able to recover. The running of Dolan was encouraging and the line play by Mannion, Doucette and Sanville left promise of better things to come in the future.

After the opening defeat at the hands of South Portland 26 to 6, a vastly improved Cheverus team tied Deering 7 to 7 and only a blocked kick by a Deering lineman within the last few minutes of the game allowed a completely outclassed Deering team to salvage a tie.

For its third game the freshmen traveled to Saco to take on a strong Thornton Academy eleven rated as one of the top freshman teams in the State. The first year boys did themselves proud by completely outplaying their opponents only to lose on a disputed play in the last seconds 18 to 13. The linebacking of Cormier and the offensive play of Kelly at quarterback were the outstanding features of the all around great play of the Cheverus team.

Back to Biddeford the following week and a scoreless tie with our old rival St. Louis. This was a hard fought game on both sides and Cheverus again showed the courage for which it will long be remembered. Outweighed 15 pounds to the man, St. Louis was never able to cross the Cheverus goal line.

Weary from the hard fought game at St. Louis, the Cheverus freshmen met a good Portland team at the Portland Stadium, which had been made sloppy from three days of continued rain, and lost 26 to 6.

Deering brings up the reserves to finally stop Dolan. (Braun on knee; Kelley 53; Doucette in background.)

Basketball

The past basketball season found Cheverus below the five hundred mark in the won—lost department. The Stags won eight while losing ten. Key victories over Westbrook, Brunswick and John Bapst spelled the difference between a good and bad season, however, as Cheverus picked up valuable points to land the eighth spot in the tourney.

Saint Louis dimmed Cheverus' hopes for an initial victory as the Eagles spurted for thirty points in the final quarter to steal a 63-62 decision. Napolitano, Clancy and McCarthy almost pulled us through as they hit in double figures.

Lavoie threw his hat into the ring against Biddeford, and along with fine play from the three stalwarts of the previous game, he paved the way to a 64-53 Cheverus victory.

Fancy ball handling brought a Bangor crowd to its feet, but the wizardry of Napolitano and McCarthy could not offset the foul line accuracy of John Bapst as the Bangorites forged to a 60-55 win.

The Stags continued to find the going tough in the Bath-tub of Morse High. A plodding Morse five clicked in the final quarter to overhaul the Irish. Napolitano's one handed jump shots rang true ten times, and Clancy drove for seven counters, but Morse won 69-66.

Lavoie, Clancy and Black rallied the Stags against Deering in the fifth encounter. The going became easy as Cheverus posted a 60-38 victory.

The team rallied around Napolitano in the first tilt with Westbrook. The crucial game found Napolitano accounting for 26 points as the Stags stopped the Blazes 55-45.

The Dragons of Brunswick next fell victim to upset-minded Cheverus. Lavoie, Black and Clancy spear-headed an attack that rolled on to a 42-37 Stag victory.

Portland proved that Bulldogs can give nasty bites. Though Cheverus shared its scoring among eight players, Portland managed to match the floor shots and then gave an exhibition of foul shooting that put them on top 52-46.

Tom Dunn threw a scare into Morse with his floor and foul shooting, and Clancy and Napolitano helped keep it close. The Shipbuilders from Bath launched out at the end with a man called "Bishop" at the helm. Morse stole another one 49-46.

South Portland all but put out the Expo lights in the next encounter. Clancy alone hit for double figures for the Stags as the Red Riot swished on to a 59-34 rout.

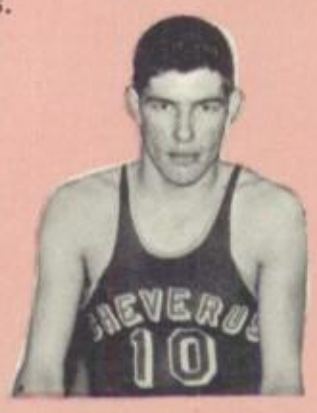
Co-Captain Bob Napolitano with Bob Cousy of the Boston Celtics.

Clancy, Napolitano and McCarthy were back in the groove against Biddeford. The Tigers offered slight resistance, but the Stags felt like running as they chalked up a 68-53 victory.

Late foul shooting by Napolitano and McCarthy along with good backboard play by Higgins insured victory for Cheverus over Deering in a tension-packed 46-42 game. The lead changed hands several times, but the final gun found Cheverus on top.

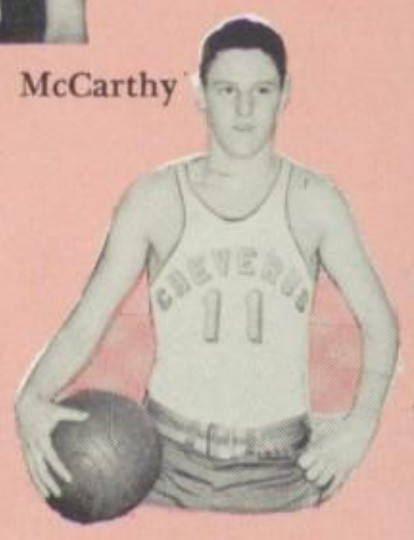


Co-Captain Dave McCarthy

For 47 minutes the Stags were in contention at Brunswick, but the second match with the Dragons went their way 48-45.

Portland couldn't muster its previous fight against a wary Cheverus five in the return match, and the 19 free throws by McCarthy coupled with 6 long sets by Dunn spelled out a Cheverus victory 56-44.

Gilles Lavoie



Tom Black

Although the final issue was in doubt for the first 45 minutes, Westbrook cooled off Cheverus in the closing moments of the game 77-64. Napolitano and Dunn gave Stag fans plenty to cheer about with their efforts in the losing cause.

South Portland too felt the fury of a fired-up Cheverus team, but the final three-minute jinx held on once more, and late Cheverus miscues made a fine game look like a rout in the papers as South Portland pulled away 66-54.

The Saint Louis Eagles took off in full flight at Biddeford and built an insurmountable lead in the second encounter with Cheverus. O'Donovan, Dunn, McCarthy and Napolitano founght back in vain, but the Stags left the court on the losing end of a 70-56 score.

John Bapst invaded the Expo for the last regular game of the year. This game was a "must" for Cheverus, and everyone got into the act as the score mounted to 68-45 in favor of the Irish.

The team clinched eighth spot in the tourney and drew South Portland as its first opponent. South Portland headed for an apparent rout in the first half smoothly and effortlessly. A full court press in the second half almost turned the tide as Cheverus pared away the large lead to a mere two points. The press took its toll in fouling at the end, and foul shooting accuracy on the part of the Capers enabled them to gain a comfortable margin at the end 66-57.

With Clancy, Dunn, McInnis, Higgins, DeSantis and O'Donovan back next year, Coach Curran can look forward to a successful year on the court.

Junior Varsity Basketball

The 1957 J. V. basketball schedule found Cheverus on the losing end more often than not. The season was far from being a failure, however, as two of the team's members blossomed into varsity players. Tom Dunn and Fred McInnis joined the varsity in its stretch drive for a tourney spot, and they helped immeasurably in some of the key victories.

Mark LaPointe and Dennis McNaboe were the most prominent members of the team over the entire season. Both seem capable of making strong bids for starting berths on the varsity next season. Mike Knowles, Fred Metcalf, Bill Holland and Jim Greaney could become pleasant surprises to Bill Curran next season when he rounds off the squad to the twelve top players.

Freshman Basketball

On the surface, the Frosh record consisted of consistent defeat; but that is hardly the whole story. Phil Conley, Bob Wiley, and Dave Vaillancourt quite often outscored those whom they played against. Bob Blackadar and Tim O'Leary stood but shoulder high to their opponents, hence had the hardest of this year's struggle since they met nothing but superior height. Bill Honan and Dick Ajemian were important helps on defense and offense.

They lost to Deering while defeating South Portland in a triangular. In the Southwestern Maine Championships they finished seventh out of nineteen schools and in the Class L section of the State Meet, eleventh among the fifteen best teams in the state.

The fifth place or better finishes of Captain Dave McCarthy coupled with his inspiring leadership kept his teammates on the victory trail; he also finished well in the Southwestern and State Meets. Captain-elect Tom Martin with five firsts and three seconds took eighth in the Southwestern and seventh in the State Meet, while posting the ninth best time; he took forty-fifth in the New Englands against the one hundred and fifty-six best runners; his record-shattering performance against Portland on October sixteenth lowered the Cheverus course record to eleven minutes and nineteen seconds. Ray Shevenell placed second three times, third twice, and fourth once and also ran the course at Cheverus under last year's record time. Hard-working Dick Corbett, fourth man, strong-running Mike Pelletier, "Smiley" McDonough, a fighter all the way, promising Peter Cyr, all lettermen, along with Steve Milose and Larry Ross, two up-and-coming freshmen, and the improving Bill Simpson and Peter Martin were the other dalers who finished Cheverus' most successful cross-country season.

Competition, in the form of a second league, provided a fuller frame for Cheverus' ultimate golf victory last year over all comers. The team lost but one match, its first, in its progress to the City Championship of Greater Portland and its victory over Thornton Academy, league winners south of Portland. The Telegram award for this victory, an engraved cup, may well be retired by Cheverus two years from now. Despite the many veterans on the team, the Cheverus High Diamondeers finished the season with a record of seven wins and nine losses. The potential of the club was shown in each of its victories which were mostly over higher ranked teams. Most impressive was a 7-1 upset over a strong Westbrook club. A heartbreaker, typical of the season's losses, was a 4-3 defeat by Thornton after twelve hard fought innings. The loss of veteran third sacker, Dan Hall, due to an injury, robbed Cheverus of several victories we are sure.

The all around performance of Randy Walker, Ray Bernier, Jack Conley, Denny McNaboe, Bob Duffy, Bob Moran, and Jerry Dowd sparked the team to its victories. The excellent pitching staff of Tom McNaboe, Jim Dunn, and Carlo Cimino deserved a far better season. Returning Jack Conley, Bob Duffy, Denny McNaboe, Jerry Dowd, Jim and Tom Dunn, and Jim Murphy look forward to a victory studded season.

Swimming

The sport of strength and stamina found several stalwarts ready and eager to strive for victory. Inexperience again kept the team from posting a victory over much more experienced opponents. Among the point getters were backstrokers Mike Thornton and Al Schroetel, medley men Joseph Moran and Morel Peterson, distance and sprint men Denny Bowman, Vin Bruni, Henry Quincannon, Ed Walsh, and Captain Don Cady.

Our Moderator, Father Dooley, S. J., and our coach, Alton Warren, helped us gain valuable experience for the future in the form of time trials, competition against veteran swimmers, and continual practice. It is our hope that soon the Swimming Team will be the proudest boast of Cheverus.

A Word of Thanks

We, the members of the Staff of THE CLARION take this opportunity to thank all who have made this 1957 edition possible. In particular, for their encouragement and assistance, we wish to thank:

Very Reverend John P. Foley, S. J., Rector of Cheverus High School.

Reverend Hugo W. Durst, S. J., our Principal, whose generosity and cooperation left nothing to be desired.

Reverend Robert H. Buchan, S. J., and Mr. Daniel C. Lewis, S. J., our Moderators, who coordinated our humble efforts.

Reverend J. Stanley Bowe, S. J., whose help came in the nick of time.

To the other members of the faculty who generously permitted us to interrupt classes for photographs, etc.

The Staff of the Wendell White Studio, and in particular Messrs. Wendell White and Paul Cain for so often inconveniencing themselves to render assistance on "special occasions." Special thanks to them for the excellent photos used in the duotones found on the dividing pages.

The Portland Lithograph Company, our publishers; and especially Mr. Linwood Card for suggestions and guidance in our many problems.

Mr. H. A. Grote of the S. K. Smith Co., for his cooperation and interest in working out our cover design.

Mr. John C. Cass, Director of Special Education in the Maine Department of Education, for his generosity in supplying information for our theme.

Epilogue

Thus far, in brief, "Careers for Youth." We hope that some, at least, have a new realization of the aimlessness that pervades so many high school students, have a new realization of the necessity of thinking and planning one's career early. To these important considerations may we add one more—one that is equally important.

Our teachers, the Jesuits, have come to Maine primarily to train leaders for Maine. In planning your career your first consideration should be to investigate the opportunities offered by your own State of Maine. In conjunction with that, we present a letter from His Excellency, Edmund S. Muskie, Governor of Maine, addressed to the Senior Class of Cheverus High School, but containing food for thought for youth of all ages. It is a fitting climax for our theme of the 1957 CLARION, "Careers for Youth."

STATE OF MAINE
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
AUGUSTA

GOVERNOR

To the Senior Class of Cheverus High School:

Woodrow Wilson once said: "The interesting and inspiring thought about America is that she asks nothing for herself except what she has a right to ask for humanity itself."

For you who are about to take an important step toward adult responsibilities, these words might well be paraphrased as follows: "Ask nothing for yourselves that you are not prepared to ask for your neighbors."

You have been preparing and equipping yourselves to meet the challenges and to take advantage of the opportunities which life has to offer. How well you do it will be important to you as individuals. You will not do it well, however, unless you recognize that you have a responsibility, as members of a democratic society, to participate in the work of that society as a whole in advancing the welfare of all. You will not do it well unless you recognize and support the right of your neighbors to do the same.

It is a highly competitive world which you are about to enter. It is a world filled with tensions and problems. It is, however, a world in which ability, determination, courage, and faith can still prevail. They will prevail if, in applying these qualities, you apply them to your neighbor's use as well as your own.

The good wishes and blessings of all the people of Maine are with you and your fellow seniors all over the State. It has been our constant effort to give you the best possible start in life. It is our hope that you will find the opportunities you seek here at home; and we are working diligently to provide them. We are doing so because we know that, in working for you, we are working for ourselves.

Sincerely,

Edmund S. Muskie
